Review Request Script Pack

Word-for-word scripts that turn finished jobs into 5-star Google reviews. Copy, paste, personalize, send.

A Quick Note Before You Start

I put this pack together because I kept seeing the same thing: roofing companies doing great work, finishing jobs the customer loved, and then getting almost no reviews to show for it. Not because the work was bad. Because nobody asked.

Reviews are one of the biggest factors in whether your company shows up when a homeowner searches for a roofer. More reviews, better reviews, and steady new reviews all tell Google that real customers trust you. That trust turns into visibility, and visibility turns into calls.

Every script in this pack is written the way a roofer actually talks. Copy them as-is, fill in the [BRACKETS], and send. Nothing fancy. Just ask.

How to use this pack: Start with the in-person ask on every finished job. Follow up with the text template the same evening. Use the email for customers you could not reach in person. The follow-up message is for anyone who said yes but never left the review.

When to Ask: The Timing Guide

Timing matters more than wording. Ask at the right moment and the review almost writes itself. Ask at the wrong moment and even a happy customer will put it off forever.

✓ The golden window: right after final walkthrough
The customer just saw the finished roof, shook your hand, and told you it looks great. That feeling fades fast. Ask now, while the satisfaction is fresh.

✓ Same evening by text
If you missed the in-person moment, text within a few hours of leaving the job site. Same day is dramatically better than next week.

✓ 3 days later if no review yet
One polite follow-up catches the people who meant to do it and forgot. Never more than two follow-ups total.

✓ After any positive interaction
A customer calls to say thanks? A neighbor compliments the work? That is a review waiting to happen. Ask on the spot.

Moments to avoid

- While there is still an open punch-list item or unresolved complaint
- Before the final payment clears (it can feel transactional)
- More than a week after the job (the emotional connection is gone)

Rule of thumb: if the customer smiled in the last 24 hours, it is a good time to ask.

Script 1: The In-Person Ask

Use this at the final walkthrough, right after the customer says they are happy with the work. Keep it natural. You are not performing, you are just asking a favor.

SAY THIS

"[FIRST NAME], I am really glad you love how it turned out. Quick favor: most of our new customers find us on Google, and honest reviews from folks like you are what keep our crews busy. Would you be willing to leave us a quick review? It takes about a minute."

If they say yes: "I appreciate that. I will text you the link tonight so it is easy to find. Thank you."

If they hesitate: "No pressure at all. If you get a minute this week, I will send the link. Either way, thank you for trusting us with your roof."

Why this works: You tied their review to something real (keeping your crews busy), you made it easy (you will send the link), and you gave them a graceful out. No awkwardness.

What NOT to say

- Do not offer discounts or gifts for reviews. It violates Google's policy and can get reviews removed.
- Do not tell them what to write. "Just be honest" is the only direction you should give.
- Do not ask in front of a group. One-on-one feels personal. A crowd feels like pressure.

Script 2: The Text Message

Send this the evening of the job, ideally within 2 to 3 hours of leaving. Short texts get answered. Long texts get saved for later (which means never).

> COPY, PASTE, SEND
>
> Hi [FIRST NAME], this is [YOUR NAME] with [COMPANY NAME]. Really glad we could take care of your roof today. If you have a minute, would you share your experience here? [REVIEW LINK] Thank you!

Script 3: The Follow-Up (for non-responders)

Send this 3 days later, only to people who said yes but have not left a review yet. One follow-up only.

> Hi [FIRST NAME], [YOUR NAME] here with [COMPANY NAME] again. Just floating that review link back to the top of your messages in case it got buried: [REVIEW LINK] Really appreciate it!

Getting your review link: Search your company name on Google, open your business profile, and copy the "Write a review" link. Shorten it with a free link shortener so it looks clean in a text.

Script 4: The Email Template

Use this for customers you could not reach in person or by text, or as a backup a week after the job. Email gets lower response rates than text, but it costs nothing to send.

SUBJECT LINE (PICK ONE)

How did we do on your roof, [FIRST NAME]?

Quick favor after your [COMPANY NAME] project

Your roof is done. One last thing.

EMAIL BODY

Hi [FIRST NAME],

Your roof project with [COMPANY NAME] is all wrapped up, and I wanted to personally say thank you for choosing us.

Most homeowners pick their roofer based on Google reviews, so honest feedback from customers like you makes a real difference for our business. If you were happy with the work, would you take a minute to share your experience here?

[REVIEW LINK]

Thank you again, and do not hesitate to call if you ever need anything with the roof.

Script 5: Responding to Positive Reviews

Reply to every review. It shows future customers you pay attention, and it shows Google your profile is active.

> COPY, PASTE, PERSONALIZE
> Thank you, [FIRST NAME]! We are glad the [roof replacement / repair / inspection] turned out great. It was a pleasure working with you, and we appreciate you taking the time to share this. - [YOUR NAME], [COMPANY NAME]

Make it specific: mention the type of work or something from the job. "Thank you!" alone looks automated. One specific detail proves a human wrote it.

Script 6: Responding to Negative Reviews

Stay calm, stay professional, and take it offline fast. Future customers judge you more on how you handle complaints than on the complaint itself.

> Hi [FIRST NAME], thank you for letting us know. I am sorry your experience did not meet the standard we hold ourselves to. I would like to make this right. Please call me directly at [PHONE NUMBER] so we can talk through what happened. - [YOUR NAME], [COMPANY NAME]

Three rules for negative reviews: (1) Never argue or get defensive in public. (2) Always invite them to call you directly. (3) Respond within 24 hours. A fast, professional reply can turn a 1-star review into a story about great customer service.

Put This Into Practice This Week

You do not need a complicated system. Here is the whole playbook on one page:

- Every finished job: ask in person at the walkthrough
- Same evening: send the text with your review link
- 3 days later: one follow-up text to anyone who has not reviewed yet
- Every review, good or bad: reply within 24 hours

Do that consistently and your review count will grow every single month. It compounds. Fifty reviews beats ten. A hundred beats fifty. And every one of them was free.

If you want help turning those reviews into more visibility and more calls, that is what I do. But even if we never talk, these scripts will work for you starting today.
